“ I have several memories of Baysul when we were kids. He cared about many things, like his appearance, hard work, his family, treating people right, and other's personal struggles. He had a good sense of humor, was witty and funny. I liked those things about him. He showed-up for others in their times of need, often when he had nothing to give but himself; and all the while he was needing the same; but he did his best to quietly shoulder his own. He will forever live in my memories and my heart. May he rest in God's eternal love. Sending prayers for comfort and strength to his family. -Patty
