“ Jane we will miss you and the video talks! They always seemed to make both you and Louie a little happier and that was contagious! Thank you for always being there for Louie! You helped to raise some pretty awesome men and women! You should be very proud of yourself and them! Your passing has left a huge hole in all of our hearts! I hope you are sitting with family right now and holding Tommy! The world seems a little dimmer here without you! I hope the love that everyone had for you is felt today!

“ Aunt Jane,

You will certainly be missed. Even though you lived so far away for all these many years, I always had a fondness for the times we did get to see you and spend time together at our family gatherings. You played such an important role for your siblings that when you did visit there was this sense of royalty returning to court. As a kid I didn't have the appreciation for what it all meant - all I knew was it was a time of excitement, anticipation, and eventually a ton of bodies, food, noise, and laughter. Nowadays, it's beyond obvious to me. Your family just missed you, loved you. It was all about celebrating you! It was a way to thank you for everything you've done and meant to your family and our desire to soak you up and refill all of our tanks until we'd see you once again.

While our tanks have been drained this week, when I close my eyes and envision you reuniting with your baby boy, Grandpa and Grandma, and Teri, Leo, and Lloyd - it begins to refill my tank. The hugs and laughs you all are sharing are putting smiles on our faces and warming our hearts. You will be missed, but we will see you soon enough.

Until our next visit - give our best to our loved ones. And you may want to rest up and re-energize because this group down here (old news to you!) is nutso and you'll need all the energy you can muster once the rest of this crazy group crosses over. It's going to be a party!

Sherry and Danny,

Our thoughts and prayers are with you and your families at this most difficult time. You had an amazing mom. And I know she's proud of you both. I'm sorry I missed the visit earlier this year in IN, but looking forward to hopefully seeing you later this year.

You know I learned something about your mom this week that I never knew - her love of hummingbirds. My mother-in-law's grandmother was full blooded Cherokee and it was handed down to my wife in her family's transition that a hummingbird represents their ancestors paying a visit. We have a hummingbird feeder and my wife's parents visit us often. Now I'll forever be anxiously looking for Aunt Jane to pay us a visit as well. I hope she visits you soon and often as well.

*Love,
Brian*

“ I have a heavy heart since Jane, my oldest Sister passed away. She has started her journey home. She was the older Sister that took care of us younger kids since Mom was so sick. She will be Forever in Our Hearts.

“ Jane,

I was blessed to have you not only as a sister, but the person that stepped up to look after me when mom couldn't. You were there for me as long as I can remember. You were there to love, support, dry tears, give hugs and nurse me through my illnesses.

Everyone should be so lucky to have a sister like you! The one steady who is there through it all. Through the laughter, tears and everything in between. The one who helps put the pieces back together. The one who supports you through loss and every win. The person who loves you enough to turn a bad day in to a good one and bring the smile back to your face. The one to guide me, remind me of right from wrong and help me become the man I am today. You were always up for any adventure, to share laughter, love and to guide me through loss.

You were a child yourself but you were our constant anyways. You made our lives better, laughter seem louder, the day a little brighter. I never heard you complain. You just tried to fill the gaps left from mom being sick for us younger kids!

Thank you for never judging me when I made mistakes. Laughing with me until the sun came up. For always being there for me! You were my constant! I hope you know just how important you always were to me! I love you!

“ Janie loved to go camping. We all went out to Clear Lake. And had the best fun. Sherry and Danny were very young but came along. Playing baseball with the younger ones. Horseshoes with the olde ones.
