“ Rodney and Alan,
I am sorry to hear of Jeff's passing. He was the proverbial "nicest guy you could ever meet."
Once of my earliest memories is of Jeff and the other neighborhood kids on Seminary.
Hardly a Sunday went by when I lived in Bloomfield that I didn't stop in the Shell station to shoot the breeze with Jeff and have him look at something on my car. Those were the "good old days"
Godspeed and rest in peace old friend.

“ I'm stunned by Jeff's death. We were so close growing up. He'll always be "Goose" to his buddies. I can't believe that he's gone.

“ Alan & Rod, I want to offer my deepest sympathy for your loss. Your loss...sounds so impersonal. Even though Jeff and I hadn't seen each other for a few years, I still considered him a good friend. I knew he was having some serious medical issues, but couldn't bring myself to see him like that. And, I'm so ashamed for that. And, I know it's doubly hard for you, Alan, after losing your mother not too long ago. I know that life doesn't seem fair sometimes, and it's not. And sometimes life throws us curves and we don't know which way is up. I've found that in such times, we shouldn't look down in pain and pity; or side to side in seeking temporary relief; rather, we should look up...to the One who can comfort us and give us the strength we need to endure through these situations. That One is God, our Father, through His Son, our Savior, Jesus Christ. I don't mean to sound "preachy." I'm just telling you what I've found that helps me through difficult times such as these. I pray that you both will find peace and comfort and strength in the Lord as you deal with the passing away of your beloved father and brother. God bless you both. And, to my dear departed friend, "Swa Goose," You will be missed more than you know and I hope to see you again one day in Heaven." Your friend, "Swa Duke."
